

I am writing to support the current status of Wisconsin's no-call list. I am strongly opposed to weakening the law that supports it. Prior to the inception of the list, I would routinely receive 3 to 4 telemarketing calls per evening, which was totally unacceptable. No consumer should be pestered in their own home without inviting the soliciter to do so. To me, this is abuse of the telephone and invasion of my home privacy. Since I added my name to the list, I have not been bothered by telemarketers. I still receive calls from charitable groups, which is understandable. Again, I support Wisconsin's no call list and hope that it continues to stay strong.